Key Senators Favor $1 Per Hour Minimum Wage Proposal

Farm State Senators May Upset Plans

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—An informal check of key senators indicated today that the Senate is likely to go beyond President Eisenhower's proposal to raise the present 75-cent minimum wage to 90 cents an hour.

Majority opinion appeared to support a boost to $1.

A question mark, however, stands over President Eisenhower's proposal to extend coverage to more than two million retail and wholesale workers now exempt.

Complicating the whole issue is the possibility that farm state senators may seek to tie onto the minimum wage bill an amendment to change the farm parity formula so that it would fully reflect the costs of farm labor.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said in an interview he is considering an amendment to the wage bill "which would include all forms of farm labor costs in the computation of parity."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said in a separate interview a "more adequate reflection of farm labor costs must be written into the parity formula." He said the minimum wage bill "would be an appropriate mechanism" for that kind of a move.

The President's proposal to boost the nationwide wage floor to 90 cents has found only one sponsor in the Senate, Sen. H. Alexander Smith (N.J.), senior Republican on the Senate labor committee, introduced a 90-cent bill when Eisenhower first requested that figure in his State of the Union message last January. But Smith's measure would make to change in coverage.

The minimum wage, a major part of the Fair Labor Standards Act, extends the protection of a wage floor to about 24 million persons engaged in some form of interstate commerce. All but 1,300,000 of these, however, are already getting 90 cents an hour or more, the Labor Department says.

Proposes Check On Monopoly In Television

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—A congressional investigation of possible monopoly practices in the television industry was proposed today by Rep. Quigley (D-Pa.).

He said there is "some evidence" that the Federal Communications Commission is making "true competition difficult." He asked the House Commerce Committee to investigate.

Quigley also announced he has turned over to the House committee five "possible changes in practice" in the industry.

They were proposed, he said, by Louis F. Appel Jr., president of the Susquehanna Broadcasting Corp. of York, Pa.

The proposals included various ways of allowing greater advantages to UHF stations in competing with the standard VHF stations.

Vatican Issues New Orders On Shorter Mass

VATICAN CITY, April 24 (AP)—The Vatican's Sacred Congregation of Rites has decreed slight abbreviation of the Roman Catholic Mass, effective next Jan. 1. The congregation also shortened the breviary which priests must recite daily.

The changes, published yesterday, conform with other measures taken by Pope Pius XII to reduce church ceremonies and give priests more time to attend to parish duties.

The mass will be simplified slightly at the beginning and after communion to the end of the service. The essential parts of the mass—the offertory, consecration and communion—will remain unchanged.

Queen Sees Scouts

WINDSOR, England, April 24 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth reviewed a parade of 1,000 Scouts, including an American, in the Windsor Castle quadrangle today.

FOUR QUEENS—Miss Marilyn Scott, Pocono Mountains entry in the Scranton-Pocono District Press Photographers contest for "Miss Press Photographer" congratulates Miss Joyce Robinson, Scranton, title winner after Saturday night's finals. Looking on are Miss Genie Burke, last year's district titleholder (left) and Miss Loma Naughton, national winner in 1954. Miss Robinson will compete in national finals at Colorado Springs.

Joyce Robinson Selected As 'Miss Press Photographer'

MISS JOYCE ROBINSON, a student at Marywood College, Scranton, was chosen Miss Press Photographer of the Scranton-Pocono District Saturday night. She will compete in national finals at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Miss Marilyn Scott, Stroudsburg, was the top contender to Miss Robinson. In fact the judges, in their difficult task of making their final decision in favor of Miss Robinson, had the contestants return for review more than the scheduled numbers of appearances.

Both Miss Robinson and Miss Scott won enthusiastic congratulatory applause and many personal compliments from judges and delegates from six states to a National Press Photographers District meeting in Hotel Jermyn, Scranton.

Sixteen beauties competed in Saturday night's finals. They appeared before judges in bathing suits and then in evening gowns.

A cocktail hour and dinner preceded the judging. Thomas F. Phillips, city editor of Scranton Tribune was toastmaster.

Speakers included Morris Bernman, new president of district three, NPPA and photographer with Pittsburgh Sun-Telegram; Mayor James T. Hanlon, Scranton; District Attorney Carlton M. O'Malley, Scranton; Congressman Joseph Carrigg of Susquehanna.

Theodore A. Serrill, general manager of Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, outlined PNPA's fight against a Westmoreland county court ban on news pictures in connection with the trial of Wesley Wable, convicted "phantom" slayer, who is now appealing his conviction to the Supreme Court.

The photo ban case has been put in the form of a "test" case which will go to the Supreme Court on appeal from conviction and sentencing of editors and photographers for violating the photo ban order.

Mr. Serrill emphasized that the press photographer is just as much a reporter of news as the regular editorial department reporter, and is therefore entitled to all the privileges guaranteed under constitutional freedom of the press rules.

Publishers To Hear Ike

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower will address the annual meeting of The Associated Press here tomorrow.

The President's speech at 2 p.m. EDT, will follow a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel with more than 1,300 editors and publishers attending.

First, Second Graders Will Be Treated

MONROE COUNTY first and second graders will begin getting their Salk vaccine shots tomorrow.

Barring a last-minute hitch in arrangements, Mrs. Theodore Hoffman said last night the vaccine should be distributed and ready to administer at some schools by 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Hoffman is head of the Salk vaccine committee in Monroe County. Her job is to coordinate all details for the inoculation jobs at schools throughout the county for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The shots are free to first and second graders. The Foundation is paying for the vaccine.

Doctors in Monroe County are contributing their services. So are the nurses and volunteer workers who will keep the records at each school. No charge is made for any service connected with the shots for first and second graders, Mrs. Hoffman emphasized.

Shots will be given at six schools tomorrow. Other schools will have their vaccine clinics on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

According to the schedule worked out by Mrs. Hoffman and other volunteers, these are the times set for each school in the county.

Tuesday, April 26: 10 a. m.—Coolbaugh Township School at Tobyhanna, Dr. E. O. Headrick in charge. 9 a. m.—Delaware Water Gap School, Dr. Joseph Viglione. 9 a. m.—East Stroudsburg Elementary School on N. Courtland St., Dr. R. Frederick Jones. 9 a. m.—East Stroudsburg Laboratory School on Teachers College campus, Dr. Frederick J. Munson. 9 a. m.—St. Matthew's Parochial School, East Stroudsburg, Dr. Walter H. Caulfield.

Wednesday, April 27: Barrett Township School at Canadensis, Dr. Harold A. Tattersall in charge at 9 a. m. After he has given shots to Barrett first and second graders, Dr. Tattersall will go to the Paradise Township School for inoculations. 9 a. m.—Middle Smithfield School at Echo Lake, Dr. Perry Stearns.

Wednesday (continued): 9 a. m.—Pocono Township School at Tannersville, Dr. Edward T. Horn in charge. Dr. Horn goes to Jackson Township School at Readers to inoculate children there after Pocono is completed. 9 a. m.—Clearview and Anahomink Schools in Stroud Township (first and second graders from both schools meet at Clearview), Dr. Roman Batory in charge.

Wednesday (continued): Tobyhanna and Tunkhannock first and second graders at the Tobyhanna School, Pocono Pines at 9 a. m. with Dr. James G. Kitchen administering the vaccine. 9 a. m.—Stroudsburg grade schools: Ramsey School, Dr. Charles Flagler in charge. Morey School, Dr. John Rumsey in charge. First and second graders from the Seventh Day Adventist School should go to Ramsey School at 9 a. m. for their shots.

Wednesday at 1 p. m.—East Stroudsburg Junior High School building for first and second graders who attend classes in that building, Dr. Charles Rushmore in charge.

Bevan Patches Up Difference With Laborites

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Aneurin Bevan, bushy browed Labor party leftwinger, was reported today to have taken the final step to patch up his row with the party's moderate leadership.

Sunday newspapers said Bevan has applied for restoration to membership in the party's parliamentary delegation. It appeared Bevan would be quickly readmitted as a move to unify the badly split party before the general election May 26. Bevan could then be expected to vote the mark, at least until the voting.

Bevan was kicked out of the parliamentary circle March 16 after a squabble with party leader Clement Attlee over defense policy. Bevan has remained a member of Parliament, but in the role of an independent.

Conservatives Win In Japan

TOKYO, Monday, April 25 (AP)—Conservatives won a solid victory in Japan's prefectural assembly elections but left-wing candidates also racked up surprising gains, returns showed today.

Democrats, Liberals and independent Conservatives captured 1,870 of the 2,613 seats in Saturday's nationwide balloting for Japan's 46 assemblies, the equivalent of state legislatures.

Hoover Commission Claims 340 Million Loss Per Year In Federal Food, Clothing Buying

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—The Hoover Commission today reported "great waste, duplication and overlapping" in government buying and handling of food and clothing.

The commission, an organization of the executive branch of the government said taxpayers could be saved 340 million dollars a year through unified, efficient management and tighter inventory controls.

The commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, called for a substantial overhauling of this phase of government operations, particularly by the armed forces. The services account for more than $1,700,000,000 of the yearly federal outlay for subsistence.

Joseph P. Binns, chairman of a commission task force which looked into government buying and handling of food and clothing, estimated that streamlining those operations could effect an overall saving of at least 10 per cent annually in the government's purchases and another 10 per cent in storage and handling.

Major recommendations in the latest of a series of commission reports included:

1. Creation within the defense department of a central agency to handle procurement, distribution, warehousing and management of the food supply for the armed forces.

2. Establishment of a similar central agency to take over full responsibility for clothing supplies for the armed forces.

3. Assumption by the General Services Administration of full responsibility for procurement and distribution of food and other common use items for all civilian government agencies, and development of cross-servicing arrangements with the Army's Quartermaster General Market Center in this work.

British Tax Cut Affects Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—A $75-million-dollar British tax cut was cited as a factor today in growing Senate opposition to the economic part of President Eisenhower's foreign aid program.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he has heard the British government's tax reduction mentioned as an argument against continuing economic aid as such. But he said he thinks it would be a mistake to measure world needs by any such criterion.

"I don't believe that any direct economic aid is being proposed for Great Britain," he told a reporter. "There may be some defense support funds and of course there would be money to continue offshore procurement of military supplies."

"But to say that because the British have cut their taxes is any argument for halting our help is a mistake. We must not overlook the fact that the British rate of taxation is much greater than ours. In fact, I think Britain is the most highly taxed major power."

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, said he was familiar with the tax cut argument but didn't know how much effect it would have on Senate consideration of the foreign aid bill.

Knowland declined to commit himself on Eisenhower's proposed 3½ billion dollar foreign aid program, which included 71½ million for economic aid. He said its reception in Congress is likely to be determined by a detailed accounting of where and how the administration plans to spend the money, most of which is for military aid.

Chairman George (D-Gal.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he still is studying the President's proposals. In the past, George had called for an end to economic aid, but he is understood to favor continuing this program in Asia.

Eisenhower's message on the subject did not spell out any country-by-country or even geographical area division of the billion dollars in defense support and 71½ million in economic assistance funds he requested. Some defense support funds go directly to foreign governments to help finance their military budgets.

However, Eisenhower said the "preponderance" of the total of 3½ billions in military and economic aid would go to bolster "the vast area of free Asia."

In announcing the British tax cut, Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler estimated American aid of $120,400,000 in a $1,304,000,000 revenue surplus in the same period. The comparison between this and an expected U.S. budget deficit apparently was a sore point with some senators.

Minority's Defense

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—In one of his last letters, the late Dr. Albert Einstein said that the "only defense a minority has is passive resistance." The letter, published in the current issue of the Reporter Magazine, was written by Einstein Nov. 24, 1954 to Arthur Taub, of New Haven, Conn.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 24 (AP)—The U. S. Weather Bureau issued a special weather advisory tonight warning of a possible isolated tornado and damaging windstorms in Cattaraugus and Chautauque Counties and the extreme southern portion of Wyoming County.

Congress To Show Ire Against Benson Farm Policies, Voting Millions More Than He Needs

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Senate leaders said today that Congress is going to show its displeasure with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and his farm policies by voting him many millions of dollars more than he asked for.

"It's a rather curious form of criticism or opposition for a farm Cabinet member," commented Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), a Benson supporter.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, agreed, saying he supported some of the multimillion dollar increases in the annual farm money bill because he disagrees with Benson policies.

But is Benson smarting under this rain of dollar blows? "Actually," said Aiken, "I believe the secretary and his subordinates will be delighted with most of the increases."

"They had been told to trim their plans in line with the President's budget, along with other agencies. Now they get the funds without being disloyal."

The two senators were talking, in separate interviews, about the Agriculture Department appropriation bill. Expected to win quick Senate passage this week, it carries more than $1,400,000,000 in cash and loans for the 12 months that begin July 1. This would exceed Benson's budget requests by 16½ million.

In recent years, the big farm money measure often has caused bitter and lengthy floor battles. This time it appeared likely to whiz through the Senate as it did the House.

Bike Riding Boy Scouts Return Home

MORRISVILLE, Pa., April 24 (AP)—Two Boy Scouts who pedaled their bikes 70 miles on an unannounced excursion were taken back to their Brooklyn homes today.

Barry E. Ragen, 12, and his neighbor, Ronald Stahlecker, 12, Brooklyn, N.Y., were picked up by their parents from Falls Twp. police.

They were spotted on U.S. Route 1 near the Morrisville Airport by two policemen about 11 p.m. Saturday night.

They said they left home Thursday on their way to visit an uncle in Virginia. They didn't know where in Virginia he lived, though.

Storm Warning

PITTSBURGH, April 24 (AP)—The U. S. Weather Bureau tonight cancelled a warning of "possibly severe thunderstorms and a few tornadoes" in Western Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia, effective at midnight.

Talks With U.S. No Bar To Move Against Island

BANDUNG, Indonesia, April 24 (AP)—Red China's Chou En-lai said tonight Peiping will not give up the "sovereign right to liberate" Formosa, even though it wants direct negotiations with the United States to ease tension in the area.

Chou spoke at the closing plenary session of the 29-nation Asian-African conference. Following up his statement of yesterday that Red China does not want war with the United States and would like direct talks on the Formosan Crisis, he said:

"China and the United States should sit down and ease tension in the Taiwan Formosa area."

"This should not in the slightest degree, however, effect the exercise by the Communist People's Republic of China of its sovereign right in the liberation of Taiwan."

Chou made no reference in his final speech to imprisoned U. S. airmen, whose release some thought he would announce to help relax international tension.

The conference wound up seven days of deliberation and debates, marked frequently by clashes between pro and anti-Communists among the delegates, and issued a long communique on the delegates' recommendations.

The delegates demanded an end to production, experimentation, and use of nuclear and thermonuclear weapons and effective international control to carry out the ban.

The conference resolutions ranged over such subjects as the promotion of world peace and cooperation, economic and cultural cooperation among the Asian and African countries, and human rights and self-determination for all peoples.

The communique said membership in the U. N. should be universal in order to promote world peace. This was the closest it came to demanding membership for Red China in U. N.

The communique also said Asian-African countries should be eligible for election to the non-permanent seats on the U. N. Security Council in order for them to make a more effective contribution to peace and security.

1. Economic cooperation among the Asian-African countries "on the basis of mutual sovereignty."

2. Cultural understanding among nations through cooperation. In this connection, the conference condemned the colonialism in Asia and Africa, "in whatever form it may be," as a bar to such cultural exchange. It also condemned racialism.

3. Full support for the principle of self-determination "of peoples and nations, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations."

4. Support for the "vigorous stand taken by the victims of racial discrimination, especially by the peoples of Africa, Indian and Pakistani origin in South Africa."

5. Support for the rights of the peoples of North Africa to self-determination. In particular, the conference declared its support for the "rights of the people of Algeria and Tunisia to self-determination and independence" and urged the French government to bring about peaceful settlement of the issue "without delay."

6. Support for the "rights of the Arab people of Palestine." The conference called for implementing U.N. resolutions on Palestine and peaceful settlement of the Palestine problem.

The plenary session was delayed more than two hours while a subcommittee worked out compromise wording on a resolution condemning colonialism. After days of battling between pro and anti-Communist delegates at the conference on whether to censure "Communist colonialism" along with the older Western brand, a subcommittee worked out a compromise condemning colonialism "in all of its manifestations," but naming neither side.

Ten Years Ago U. S.-Russia On Elbe River

By TOM WHITNEY
(AP Foreign Staff)

TEN years ago today Soviet and American troops met on the Elbe River in Germany. Hitler's military might crumbled and the whole world rejoiced.

Remember those photos of American soldiers and Russian "boys" joyously embracing each other and grinning? They were the symbols of the hopes of people for a "one world" peace. Ten years later it's hard to recollect those feelings of Russians and Americans when East and West met at Torgau on April 25, 1945.

A few days later Russians in Moscow for the first and only time since the Bolshevik revolution had an opportunity to demonstrate their feelings toward the United States. Moscow radio in the wee small hours of May 9, 1945 finally announced the armistice with Germany. The day was hastily proclaimed an unorganized holiday. Russians milled about through the Moscow squares and danced on the streets. Their biggest demonstration was in front of the American Embassy. Thousands and thousands shouted their greetings and affections for the great ally. No one who was there—as I was—can ever doubt the warmth of those affections. In them lay a chance to build a lasting friendship of two great peoples.

But this did not suit the plans of the Kremlin.

What are the feelings of Russians for the United States now? Is there any friendship left? Apparently there is.

Americans who have been in the Soviet Union report they universally encountered friendliness among the ordinary Russians they encountered from all walks of life, friendliness towards them not just as foreigners but specifically as Americans.

The most interesting testimony to continuing good feeling of Russians towards United States comes from the Soviet government itself. Without letup through all facilities of the great Communist propaganda machine, the Kremlin is attempting to convince Russians that the United States is hostile to the peoples of the Soviet Union, that it hates Russians. For eight years an unending stream of propaganda has aimed at arousing hate for the United States.

No chance is too small to be neglected. U. S. hockey players in international matches are called "hooligans." The U. S. government is first depicted as "inhospitable" is not issuing quick visas to Soviet groups which say they want to come to the United States; and then when visas actually are issued to one group of Soviet editors the U. S. government is depicted as having "intolerable" immigration procedures to which Russians cannot descend. American aid for other countries is "imperialism." President Eisenhower's program for helping other nations develop peaceful uses of atomic energy is "dishonest." When American science scores a triumph over infantile paralysis, the Soviet press fails to mention it.

Why is all this necessary? Because the Kremlin finds that Soviet people are not yet sufficiently hostile to the United States, that they do not hate the United States as the Kremlin wants them to. Ten years have somewhat dimmed the spirit of the meeting on the Elbe but have not destroyed it.

People Were Sheepish Last Week

By Joy Miller

NEW YORK, April 24 (P)—People were more sheepish than anything last week.

A man paid for a book he had borrowed and brought back badly chewed to New York City's public library. The book: Frederick Reiter's "You Train Your Dog."

In Pratt, Kan., a memory expert delighted the Knife and Fork Club by recalling the full names of the 100 members he had met earlier in the evening. In a couple of days the club secretary got a letter from the expert. He had forgotten his hat—and he couldn't remember whether he had left it at the hotel or the auditorium.

A woman in Providence, R. I. wasn't sheepish about it, but she gambled. She had a hunch, picked a horse at Lincoln Downs and won $17.40. As she turned over the money to the Lying-in Hospital building fund of which she is a division commander, she explained about the horse. His name was "Expectant."

A man was finding an automatic stamp machine in Roanoke, Va. too complicated. A stranger waiting his turn helped him extract a three-cent stamp with the comment: "How do you expect us to figure out those tax forms of yours when you can't even work a simple thing like this?" Internal Revenue Service Director T. Coleman Andrews just smiled. Sheepishly?

Then we have the Salt Lake City contractor who lustily kicked a front porch to help him figure his estimate on its remodeling. His kick knocked out the support, the roof caved in, and he's in the hospital with a broken arm and injured hip.

In Jackson, Miss., two National Guardsmen completed one of the shortest flights in local history. They took off in a National Guard plane on a 500-mile cross-country trip. A snake stuck his head out of the instrument panel. Five minutes later the plane was back on the ground and the 42-inch chicken snake dispatched.

Dan Flood's Attack On Air Force Crashes Results In Report Of Fewer Big Wrecks

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, April 24—The Air Force had 1,873 "major" accidents last year, but that still constituted the best safety record in the history of the service.

That is what Air Secretary Harold Talbott disclosed during a stormy private meeting with the House Appropriations Committee. Representative Dan Flood (D., Pa.) and in reply Talbott revealed heretofore unknown details about the 1954 record, as follows:

The Air Force had 292 fewer "major" accidents last year than in 1953, although the service flew 600,000 more hours;

Jet fighters were involved in the largest number of accidents—62 percent;

Pilot's error was the primary cause of 59 percent of the accidents, 24 percent were due to material failure, and the remainder were from undetermined causes;

Two recent C-119 (transport) accidents were due to failure of mechanical parts.

During the sizzling exchange with Flood, Talbott argued, "The Air Force accident record is better than that of the Navy."

"We're not talking about the Navy," snapped Flood. "We're talking about the Air Force. What we want to know is why you have so many crashes. It seems to me every time I pick up a newspaper another of your planes has crashed, killing a lot of crewmen and passengers."

Talbott vigorously contended that last year the Air Force "had the lowest accident record in its history in spite of the fact that we operated more high powered jet equipment than ever before."

"That's just generalities," insisted Flood. "If 500 or more airmen are killed, regardless of whether that's the least number in your history, it's still a very tragic fact. What causes these crashes; why are your planes constantly falling out of the air?"

"They aren't constantly falling out of the air," replied Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Chief of Staff. "Accidents occur and we hate them worse than you do, because these are our own people; all too often they are men we know personally."

Representative George Mahon (D., Tex.) asked about a recent B-36 bomber crash.

"The plane landed short," explained Twining. "We are investigating the reason. Men were killed and we're trying to find out the cause so similar crashes can be avoided. Our B-36 record in 1954 is excellent. The Strategic Air Command had the lowest accident rate in its history, with only nine 'major' accidents in 100,000 hours of flying. That is extraordinary."

"I don't know whether you should be denounced or not," said Flood. "You say your record in 1954 is the best you've ever had. Maybe so, but there are a lot of people in the country who think you're not disclosing all the facts about this."

Gen. Twining vigorously denied that.

Leader's Income Tax Plan Contains Very Stiff Penalties

Apply To Leaks* On Returns Of Taxpayers

HARRISBURG, April 24 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Herbert B. Cohen said tonight the administration's income tax plan will contain stiff penalties for unauthorized disclosure of taxpayers' returns.

The maximum penalty will be a $1,000 or a year in jail plus dismissal for any state employee who leaks out any information under legislation ready for introduction in the General Assembly tomorrow.

However, the Democratic leadership indicated there would be no effort to push action immediately on the half-billion dollar tax package built around a classified income tax. The rates would range from 1 per cent on salaries and wages to 6 per cent on various classes of investments.

The lawmakers, who received Gov. George M. Leader's 620 million dollar tax message last Tuesday, return tomorrow to face an administration plea that the program be enacted to balance a $1,843,000,000 budget, largest in Commonwealth history.

But Rep. Albert S. Readinger, House Democratic floor leader, said he expects no action until mid-May.

"I don't want to rush the members," he told a newsman. "I want them all to fully understand the program and the reasoning behind it."

Readinger, who is supporting the tax package, faces the opposition not only of Republicans but of eight members in his own party.

He will have to line up 106 votes to pass the tax plan in the House. Eight Democratic no votes, coupled with solid GOP opposition, are enough to defeat the measure.

Even with House passage, the administration would have to reckon with the Republican-controlled Senate to make his tax program law.

Republican leaders unloaded a barrage of critical statements at the governor's tax program over the weekend. Sen. Joseph M. Barr, Democratic state chairman, defended it.

Miles Horst, Republican state chairman, said the tax program "has a built-in secret multi-million dollar political slush fund."

Democrats, Horst said, are planning "an all-out drive to capture Pennsylvania in the 1956 election despite the overwhelming popularity of President Eisenhower."

"To do this, they will need many millions more than was ever spent before in any election and that's where Pennsylvania taxpayers come in."

"If you go down through Leader's budget, you will find millions of dollars laid aside for political job hiring, with the biggest amounts earmarked for the Department of Highways. But even that is not the whole story. There are millions upon millions the governor isn't even talking about."

Barr said in his statement that Republicans are resorting to "too much demagoguery" in their tax opposition.

"They believe the louder they scream, the more readily sins and omissions of four Republican administrations will be forgotten," Barr said.

During last year's political campaign, Barr said, no one on the Democratic side "ever suspected" the need for new revenues "would reach the stratospheric figure of 510 million dollars."

Consequently, Barr said, Gov. Leader after taking office "was forced to make a drastic re-scaling of campaign estimates," adding:

"Whatever the critics of Gov. Leader may say as to violated campaign pledges, let it be an irrefutable matter of record that the financial deceptions practiced by the Republican Party justify, without loss of political honor, any revision in our thinking which necessarily might equip us to face up to the monstrous catastrophe of Republican mismanagement."

Johnny Ray, Terry Moore, To Marry

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—A London newspaper suggested today wedding bells may soon ring for singer Johnny Ray and Hollywood actress Terry Moore.

The Reynolds news quoted Ray as saying "of course I'm very fond of her, but I feel that any comment on our relationship should come from the lady."

Interviewed later, Miss Moore gave a "knowing wink," the paper said, and whispered "he's a grand guy."

Ray is here to sing at the Palladium, Miss Moore to act in a film.

Jaycees Invite Teen-Agers To Compete In Monroe County Road-E-O At Ramsey May 14

THE POCONO Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce has completed plans to hold its first Teen Age Road-E-O in Monroe County May 14 on the Ramsey School Grounds, Stroudsburg.

The newest Jaycee project will be part of a national contest carried on since 1952 by Jaycee units throughout the United States. Over 250,000 youngsters from 100 cities and towns participated in the contest last year.

Prizes valued at $50 will be given to the top three winners in the local Road-E-O. The first place finisher will go on to represent this area in the state driving finals at Johnstown, Pa., next June. The state champion will compete for national honors at Washington, D. C.

The first five finishers in the national contest at Washington will divide $3,100 in scholarships. The nationals will be held July 25-29.

All the schools throughout the county have been contacted concerning this contest and a large entry list is expected with considerable interest being shown by the students. The deadline for applications has been set at April 30.

The early date for the return of applications was deemed necessary in order that the Jaycees be able to determine the number of contestants to be accommodated. In case of rain, the contest would be postponed to May 21.

The Junior Chamber will conduct a written examination a week in advance of the driving test. The written exams will be held at the various area schools.

Four skill tests will feature the actual driving. These will be: driving forward and backward for 100 feet between ball markers; zig-zag backing and going forward through flags 23 feet apart; parallel parking in space 22 feet, six inches; driving to a speed of 20 miles per hour and stopping with front bumper even with a fixed object.

These same tests will be conducted at the state Road-E-O along with a road check for "in traffic" performance.

Peter Wyckoff, local J. C. president, is in charge of preparations for the big program with Stanley Grace serving as chairman of the Road-E-O committee.

The Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. and American Trucking Association, Inc., are co-sponsors of the annual contest, along with Junior Chamber groups.

The Teen Age Road-E-O is designed to give the nation's young motorists an opportunity to prove and improve their driving habits and attitudes, and to stimulate community activities in bigger and better driver education programs in the high school.

This safe-driving event is open to all teen-agers, boys or girls, who hold a driving permit or a license. Contestants must have a clean record of no moving traffic violations in the past six months. Any person reaching their 20th birthday before July 29 will be declared ineligible.

Monroe County teen-agers interested in taking part are advised to study the handbooks on safe driving and traffic laws distributed by local, county and state police. Knowledge of how to apply the laws and rules of the road, mixed liberally with practice are also Road-E-O prerequisites.

Bloodmobile At Polk High This Tuesday

THE RED CROSS Bloodmobile stops at Polk Township School in Kresgeville Tuesday from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Quota for the visit will be the regular 125 pints needed each time the mobile unit visits Monroe County.

In charge of the Tuesday visit drive for donors are Mrs. Ann Shafer and James Gould.

All persons wishing to contribute blood are asked to contact either Mrs. Shafer, Gould or Mrs. Ida Kunkle, director of the Red Cross in Monroe County.

About 80 pledges have been signed so far, Mrs. Kunkle said. Numerous West End residents are helping secure donors, she said.

Donors are specifically sought from Polk, Eldred, Chestnut Hill, Jackson and Hamilton Townships. Mrs. Kunkle said. All other persons are also asked to give blood during the visit, too, she continued.

1955 Barrett Award Goes To Mrs. Ray Price

CRESKO — The 1955 Barrett Appreciation Award will be given to Mrs. Violet Hallet Price. It is given in recognition of services by an individual for the betterment of the community.

H. Irwin Shinnen, president of the community organization which presents the award each year, issued the following statement for the group last night:

"Mrs. Price has been active all her life in every movement to make Barrett township a good community — morally, physically and spiritually. She has been untiring in her personal efforts to help people in need.

"She has shown understanding and compassion in dealing with those who were unfortunate. She has given of her time and talents, and her substance, to make the community a better place in which to live. She has brought cheer to those who need it.

"She has been active in child care and established a clinic for this purpose. She was one of the founders of the Barrett Auxiliary for the General Hospital and is now an active member of the Hospital board of directors.

"She was one of the original group that served unofficially for years and which later became the Barrett Neighborhood Association. She is still an active member. She is a charter member of the Barrett Welfare Fund.

"She is a member of the Canadian Methodist Church and has been active in the Red Cross, Barrett Friendly Library and the Barrett Art Group. The name of Violet Hallet Price has been associated with every worthwhile movement organized to make Barrett township a neighborly place. Mrs. Price has shown how to make practical application of her Christian standards.

"Barrett is fortunate not only in its selection of Mrs. Price for its annual award but also in the broad participation of the whole community.

Groups participating in the effort are Canadian Methodist Church, Rotary Club of the Mountains, Mountaintop Camp of Patriotic Order of Sons of America, Auxiliary of Evans-Blitz Post and the Evans-Blitz Post of the American Legion, Barrett PTA, St. Anne's Catholic Church, Barrett High School Alumni, Mountaintop PO of A. Moravian Church, Barrett Lions Club, Barrett Women's Club, Barrett Community Club and the Mountaintop Methodist Church.

The award will be presented to Mrs. Price at a dinner to be held during "Appreciation Week" beginning June 12.

$2,000 Property Damages Result From Two Car Wreck Police Attribute To Lights

MOUNT POCONO—An estimated $2,000 property damage was caused in a two-car collision five miles north of here Saturday at 7:15 p.m.

The accident occurred on Route 611, Mount Pocono State police said the cars involved were driven by Jerome D. Hawkins, 24, Maple Lake, Minn., a student, and Jerry Joyce, 56, of Scranton, a machine operator.

The accident occurred, police said, when Hawkins was blinded by the lights of an oncoming vehicle.

His car swung to the left, hit the concrete divider in the center of the highway then veered back to the right and struck the rear end of the Joyce vehicle, police said. Both cars were going north on the highway.

Damage to the Joyce car was estimated at $1,500; to the Hawkins car at $500, police said. Hawkins was taken to the office of Dr. E. O. Headrick, Mount Pocono where he was treated for head and face bruises.

Vollers Calls CD Auxiliary Police Group

J. FIELDING VOLLERS, hospitalized Civil Defense director of East Stroudsburg, has called a special meeting of all men and women CD auxiliary police members and wardens to be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Day Street fire station.

The meeting will be featured by the arranging of assignments for police and wardens to places of duty in preparation for the next Civil Defense alert.

Vollers has shown considerable improvement from his illness at the General Hospital and has expressed praise for the excellent work being done by CD members during his absence.

Those persons handling the bulk of his work are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eyer, Henry Peters and Mrs. Rudolph Blitz.

Fishing Crossed Off List

BELMAR, N. J., April 24 (AP)—Mrs. Virginia Johnson of Allentown, Pa., has crossed fishing off her list of things-to-do-in-one's spare time.

She and her husband got up before dawn Saturday to go on a fishing trip on the Bobby II. In six hours she got seacock, didn't catch any fish, and to top that off the fishing vessel was hit by a passenger liner.

"It's my first and last time" on a fishing boat, she declared.

Havertown Student Drowned

ITHACA, N. Y., April 24 (AP)—Richard E. Kremer, a 20-year-old engineering student from Havertown, Pa., was drowned yesterday when he apparently waded into a deep pool of water to retrieve a tennis racket.

Felix J. Rosengarten of Point Pleasant, Pa., a classmate, said Kremer dropped the racket as the two walked along the top of a 300-foot gorge near the Cornell University campus.

Rosengarten said the racket slid part way down the embankment. He and Kremer threw stones to dislodge it and it fell into the pool at the foot of a small waterfall, he related. The two students then clambered down a narrow trail to the bottom of the gorge.

Rosengarten said the racket was floating in the water and Kremer apparently waded in to get it. He said that he was some distance behind Kremer going down the embankment and did not see that Kremer was in trouble until it was too late to help him.

Police using grappling irons recovered the body from 12 feet of water about three and a half hours later.

Kremer, a junior, was studying chemical and metallurgical engineering at Cornell. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Kremer of 517 Furlong Ave., Havertown, Pa.

Guard On Alert

While only a portion of Pennsylvania's National Guard personnel participated in last Wednesday night's national trial alert, those called upon responded to the call with efficient enthusiasm and were at their posts of duty within an amazingly short time.

And Pennsylvania, the Pentagon reports, was the first of all the states to check in with a message that the alert had gone out to all indicated organizations and that they were either at their assigned stations or en route to them.

This demonstration of the state of readiness in which the country's first line of "semi-professional" military men finds itself in these uneasy times is a matter of great satisfaction to all of us, including the men participating.

From earliest national history, the Pennsylvania National Guard has been properly proud of the part it has played in the country's military picture, and the very fact that this Commonwealth led the alert this week proves once again the high state of morale and the determination to maintain our units in readiness.

Pennsylvania's part in the alert was mainly that of its airmen and anti-aircraft artillerymen, and the manner in which both aviation and ground elements responded to the orders brought satisfied smiles to the faces of the commanding officers.

Adjutant General Biddle, who only last week took over the command of the Pennsylvania Department of Military Affairs, was highly pleased with the results, and commented that the outfits are "really on their toes."

One can but pray that we shall never see the time when a real alert will be flashed.

Accentuate the Positive

When Johnny Mercer, the songwriter, deposited a $200,000 check in a Savannah bank recently, with which to clear his late father's debts, he not only performed a notable act but made a positive contribution to the restoration of our faith in the essential quality of human nature.

Many years ago Johnny Mercer wrote a popular tune called "Accentuate the Positive." It was a pleasant if unimportant tune, and it was sung and played for the usual brief period of popularity, but little did those who heard it know that the songwriter was to accentuate the positive in filial devotion as he did through his recent financial action.

Considerably more than a generation ago Johnny's father failed in a Georgia business venture in which many people held certificates of deposit. Through the years this worried the young man who was destined to be one of our most popular and successful writers of songs in the modern manner, and he hoped and prayed that the day would come when he might be able to clear the name of Mercer through paying off his father's debts.

Last week that day arrived, and even though the songwriter complained that he wanted no publicity in what he considered a family affair, it was impossible to keep the story from being publicized as the happy creditors in Savannah learned of the good fortune they were to share, so unexpectedly.

So now the name of Johnny's father is cleared, and everyone concerned in the transaction is naturally happy about it. The greatest element in the entire transaction, however, is that it could happen in a supposedly cynical and selfish world.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Both Parties Have Become Vehicles For Election, Not Agencies Of Principles

A person is called a reactionary who moves within the traditions of American life and history. The definition is my own but the facts behind it are demonstrable. I take the following from a statement made by Louis Hollander, president of the New York State C.I.O. who said:

"I believe we can force the reactionaries of both old parties to form their own third party. Then labor can sit down and rebuild one of the two remaining parties, supporting the liberals who stay on."

Hollander happened to say this because someone else, at the particular meeting he was addressing, had suggested that labor form its own third party which would seem to be the logical and honest way of going about it if anyone desired a third party.

Under the tutelage of the A.D.A., however, some labor leaders, Socialists, ancient New Dealers and forensic Republicans have concluded that the best way to walk off with another man's possessions is to go into his home and take over. Why bother to form a third party when it is possible by infiltration to steal both the Republican and Democratic Parties?

The question then arises as to whether it can be done. In New York State, the A.D.A. has more or less been pushed out of the Democratic Party. Neither Governor Averell Harriman nor Carmine DeSapio, who runs Democratic politics, will have anything to do with this amalgam of people on the Left. On the other hand, the Republican Party in this great state is not so resistant to the A.D.A. because being out of power is very unpleasant after so long a period in office and maybe with a little assistance the Republicans can get somewhere.

Besides, the only Republican elected last year, the Attorney General, Jacob Javits, is on the untraditional side and nobody will call him a reactionary, no matter what else he might call him. In fact, if Hollander's friends manage to infiltrate and capture the Republican Party in New York, for Javits to leave it no matter what unseemly company he would be forced to keep.

Actually none of this is likely to happen on a national scale in the near future but it does indicate a manner of mind. The A.D.A. has sought to be a balance of power among the Democrats and has only failed because of a Southern repugnance for Socialists which may be overcome, in due course, as the industrialization of the South proceeds.

Among the Republicans, these days, the only fixed principle is that President Eisenhower is a great and popular man who cannot be defeated in 1956. Apart from that, the Party in power, as it were, views life and events pragmatically, hoping that more credits will be gained than minus and that in due course everything will work out well enough, although in these muddled times no one can look forward to perfection. Republicans generally accept it as inevitable truth that Eisenhower cannot be defeated in 1956 no matter who runs against him and that no other Republican can be elected. The theft of a political party by infiltration, two of them, as Hollander advocates, is only possible because of the debasement of public morals. In Hollander's circles, it would be called "khutzpa," which may be defined as aggressive, devil-may-care impudence and sometimes even imprudence. And it is even possible that to one who is guilty of "khutzpa" go the spoils because other men, less forward, shun the battle and give the field.

If political parties were membership organizations in the United States, as they are in Great Britain, capture of the Party by infiltration would not be so likely and probably impossible. In Great Britain, it is not within reason to conceive of a group of men banding together to capture both the Conservative and Labour Parties and offering Sir Anthony Eden and Clement Attlee the choice of organizing a third party. If nothing else, public morals would be outraged by such a thought.

Yet in the United States not only is the A.D.A. seeking to do exactly that but Mr. Hollander boasts of it and offers it as a program. And the reason that anyone dares do it is that both parties have become mostly vehicles for election, not agencies for the struggle over public principle.

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

A letter signed by 14 prominent Americans was read at the Asiatic-African Conference at Bandung declaring that "because of America's great wealth it continues in ancient superstitions which YOU CAN NO LONGER TOLERATE."

It adds, "in large measure still adhere to political, religious and economic institutions based upon survival; rather than upon fulfillment." If that doesn't bring an exasperated cry of "Izzat so?" from most Americans it will be because they weren't paying attention, or are too sore to talk.

Uncle Sam clings to ancient superstitions that Asia and Africa can't tolerate, eh? The ancient superstitions reflected by the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the Constitution and American democracy . . . the old fogey ideas acquired through the faith of the Founding Fathers, the men of Concord and Lexington, and the stalwart families huddled in covered wagons breaking trails across a continent, you mean? . . . the superstitions Americans get when they think of Davy Crockett, Daniel Boone, Nathan Hale and Ethan Allen? . . . (And they can no longer be tolerated by Chou En-lai, Mao, Nehru and the other boys in the Asiatic huddle! Oh, brother!)

So Uncle Sam adheres to "institutions based upon survival" and Asiatics can't tolerate that either! Institutions such as the Four Freedoms, the ballot box, the town meeting and government of the people by the people and for the people . . . All that sort of thing, eh? "Survival is not growth," you say. "It breeds conflict, division and stagnation." (So if I want to live through tomorrow I am a dirty old trouble maker and it hampers the peoples of Red China, Russia and all the ever-loving nations so completely unconcerned about surviving!) Your Bandung epistle says, "We shall be watching because any solution you discover should help us all." (ANY solution! Good or bad, hot or cold, sound or cockeyed! You don't say so!)

"The deep need is for confidence in man," you continue, "a confidence upon which democratic institutions can be established. Confidence in Chou En-lai and Nehru but not in Abe Lincoln and George Washington? (Pardon me while I take another aspirin; my head is slipping.) You add, "We have need that you (the Asiatics) shall be the source of reintegrating our world into a COMMUNITY OF LOVE AND UNDERSTANDING!" Well, Moscow and Peking are still getting a big laugh out of that one. Not a word in the letter indicating Uncle Sam is a fairly decent guy, that our civilization has its good points and that the record from Plymouth Rock and Bunker Hill to the year of Bandung has not been too bad to be TOLERATED in Red China, Cambodia, Pakistan, India, Burma, Ceylon, Indonesia, Egypt, North and South Africa, Moscow and points east and west. Couldn't you have sneaked in one good word for Uncle Sam anywhere somehow?

Page boys in the Senate asked ex-President Truman for his autographed photo, and Harry asked what they were worth today, he having once been told an autographed picture of four Senators was worth one Marilyn Monroe . . . Our expert in such matters says the current rate of exchange is three Eisenhower's for one Grace Kelly, six Trumans for a Dagmar and two dozen Calvin Coolidges for a Gabor. . . Professor Einstein had been at Princeton since 1932 and had one of the great minds in history, but never came up with a theory that always worked in the annual football tangle with Yale and Harvard . . . Warner Brothers have filed the title "The Triumph of Dr. Jonas Salk" just in case they decide to make a movie. . . This will probably be delayed until they come up with some actor who doesn't resemble the doctor in any way, shape or form

Salk Vaccine Test Proves New Science Exploration

Exactly how effective a weapon against polio was added to the physician's kit through the Salk vaccine test may not be determined for some time.

But it is a fairly safe bet that the experiment struck a blow against a great many physical, social, economic and political ills that have only a remote connection with polio.

The greatest significance of the mass vaccination experiment is probably not that it showed Dr. Salk's vaccine to be effective. Rather it is that the test showed the practicability of a new and useful technique of scientific exploration.

This may fully warrant the American Medical Association's uncharacteristic enthusiasm in hailing the outcome of the experiment as "one of the greatest events in the history of medicine."

Never before, so far as I know, had so many of human beings played a part in the statistical checking of a scientific theory with so great an emotional impact on so many people. Never before had an experimental laboratory achievement been so heavily hypodromed and built up with so much public fanfare—except possibly in connection with the announcement of the first atomic bomb.

For precisely these reasons, never before had the people at large been so forcefully impressed with the importance of carefully controlled experimentation to their own health and happiness.

Just as the development of team research half a century ago gave marked acceleration to the advancement of science and invention, so this device of mass participation may have opened up a shortcut to even more wonderful discoveries in the next half-century.

Of course there is some danger that the dramatic success of the polio experiment might backfire. There will be enthusiasts who won't see why we shouldn't make a lot of quick medical progress by trying out on hundreds of thousands of people other promising but unproved laboratory concoctions for combating cancer, rheumatic fever, the common cold, athlete's foot and whatnot.

Obviously making professional guinea pigs of the entire populace would involve hazards that should be approached with caution and restraint.

But even without any more wholesale testing, the popular interest and enthusiasm stirred up by the polio test should give strong new impetus to research—not only in medicine but in all fields. More bright young men and women should be inspired to fix their sights on careers in science. Money for laboratory experimenting and field exploration should be easier to find.

In the next few years we may see other controlled mass testing of ways to avoid highway collisions, curb juvenile delinquency, avert depression and inflation, prevent war, discourage quack-grass . . . Who knows?

In short, whether or not we get polio completely licked, as a result of the Salk vaccine test we are likely to see a lot of other cooperative efforts to find out what makes things tick around here. Hang onto your hat.

International Agency For Uranium Pool Is Readied

Washington — The international agency, which will administer President Eisenhower's plan for a uranium pool for peaceful purposes, will be established within three months. Negotiations are nearing completion on the treaty and charter of this historic organization.

The countries engaged in these private discussions—and which will probably be the charter members of the international atomic energy agency—have agreed on the major provisions of these two basic pacts and their final form is now in preparation. These key nations are the U.S., Britain, Canada, France, Belgium and Australia.

Russia's participation is unlikely. That's what Secretary of State Dulles has told the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee. The U. S. extended an invitation to the Soviet, but the latter's attitude has been consistently hostile. However, the door is still open.

Moscow has been given a copy of the tentative treaty and charter. That was the purpose of Ambassador Zorubins' mysterious visit to the State Department. He was summoned to receive the drafts, with a request for an answer by June 1.

The proposed international atomic agency was put up to Russia on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

The new organization will not be part of the United Nations; originally it will be set up outside of that. But later it may be linked to the UN if that is deemed desirable.

The agency will be governed by a board of directors, made up of permanent and temporary members, similar to the UN Security Council. The U. S., Britain and Canada will be permanent members. The initial board will likely consist of the six key nations plus South Africa and Portugal.

The board will operate by majority vote. Veto control will be banned.

Under present plans, 81 countries will be invited to join the world atomic agency. Its primary purpose will be to act as a clearing house for fashionable material and information on the peaceful use of atomic energy.

The agency could also build storage facilities for nuclear fuel if the permanent members approve.

Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, in a talk with President Eisenhower expressed confidence the Senate will ratify the treaty and charter before adjourning this summer. A two-thirds vote will be required, but Anderson anticipates no difficulty in getting it.

Milk Matters To Farmers, And Public

—by H. G. Heller

Everybody knows that cows give milk and a lot of people know that cows give too much milk. Dairy cows produce annually about $5 billion worth of milk and milk products. Over 2 million of the country's 5 million farmers derive all or part of their income from the dairy cow, according to an article entitled "The Cow: A Source of Wealth," published in the April Business Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Originally designed to suckle her young, the productivity of the cow has been stepped up by man so that some of the best milkers produce annually a volume of milk 12 to 15 times their own weight. That is one reason why the United States is knee deep in a sea of milk. Milk is in a muddle because of the countrywide surplus of milk, together with the traditional systems of distribution and pricing. Farmers are unhappy about the low prices they get for milk, consumers are unhappy about the prices they must pay for milk, and the Secretary of Agriculture has a perennial job of disposing of surplus milk products.

Pennsylvania, a great industrial state, is also a great "Cow Commonwealth." Dairying contributes annually about $300 million of income to Pennsylvania farmers. Among the numerous reasons why so many Pennsylvania farmers keep cows are the lush meadows of the state and the abundance of good markets for fluid milk.

Compared with his forebears, the modern dairy farmer engages in push-button farming and needs a lot of capital. He must be handy with the wrench and oil can than with the pitchfork and the hoe. Dairy farms are constantly getting larger, costlier, and harder to operate at a profit. The dairy farmer may not be well-versed in the theory of overhead costs, but he certainly is well-versed in the practice thereof.

With particular emphasis on Pennsylvania, the article goes on to tell when milk flows, how much milk flows—and where it flows. Devoting considerable emphasis to an analysis of the current surplus milk problem, it is said that of all groups associated with the industry only the cow looks happy. Yet her entire life is regulated. She is robbed of her children a few days after they are born. She is scientifically bred, dietetically fed, mechanically milked, and romantically milked. As soon as she is over the hill as a good milker, she is sent to the butcher to be made into hot dogs and bologna, and fertilizer. Many of her offspring are slaughtered for veal or "chicken salad." In death as in life she serves her masters.

As a source of wealth, says the Bank, the cow has few if any peers among the creatures that roam the face of the earth.

Miss Bisbing Is Bride Of R. Lansdowne

Mount Pocono — Miss Shirley Ann Bisbing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Bisbing of 22 Kinney Ave., Mount Pocono, became the bride of Robert L. Lansdowne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lansdowne, of Stroudsburg, RD 1, on Saturday afternoon at 2 in a pretty Spring wedding at the Mount Pocono Methodist Church.

Rev. Edgar Herish performed the ceremony with a fourteen-branch candelabra lighting the gold altar cross and the bouquets of white snapdragons and palms which formed a background for the wedding party. White satin bows marked the ends of the pews. The organist, Mrs. Joseph Williams, presented a recital of wedding music before the ceremony, and played the traditional wedding march.

The bride's wedding gown was of waltz length white illusion net and Spanish lace with a tiered skirt over white tulle. The fitted lace bodice had a long torso line, and with it she wore a lace jacket with a stand-up collar, buttoned front and long sleeves coming to a point over her hands. Her four-tiered veil of nylon illusion was attached to a tiara of studded pearls and rhinestones. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid and white satin streamers. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Wanda Bisbing was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of nylon and tulle in pastel pink over the same shade of tulle. The full skirt was waltz-length and the fitted bodice had a boat neckline. Her headpiece was a tiara of flowers with a face veil in the same shade of pink with matching mitts and shoes. She carried a colonial nosegay of mixed flowers.

Miss Renee Johnson of Kinney Ave., Mount Pocono, was bridesmaid. She wore a similar dress in ice blue with matching accessories and carried a colonial bouquet.

Harold Lansdowne Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Clayton Heinbach and Clyde Shaffer, both of East Stroudsburg.

The bride's mother wore a dress of brown silk shantung with beige accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue silk dress with blue and white accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

A reception for 200 guests was held following the ceremony in the social rooms of the church. The receiving line stood in front of a bank of palms, forsythia and snapdragons. A white wedding bell and white satin streamers fell from the ceiling over the bride's table with a four-tiered wedding cake as a centerpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Lansdowne are now on a wedding trip to the New England States and Canada. For traveling the bride wore a beige tailored suit with ice blue accessories and a white orchid corsage.

On their return they will make their home at 124 Center Ave., Mount Pocono.

The bride is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and the Empire Beauty College. She operates her own shop in Mount Pocono. The bridegroom was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School, served four years in the U. S. Navy and is employed by his father.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Eventually, of course, we'll make it, but until then I'm taking the back streets and dreading the telephone. Did listen around the corner to the enthusiastic raving about the "big time" program at Clearview's pop concert on Saturday night.

And nobody could miss the delight the doctor's wives were taking in the success of their tea for the high school girls interested in nursing. They were delighted with the girls, with their interest, and with the way the program worked out.

And it takes a lot to rouse the enthusiasm on a rainy Sunday, particularly one which starts out with a lost hour from the night before. Wonder why it is that we adjust to the extra hour we gain in the Fall in the course of the day in which we gained it, but that it takes us a full week to adjust to Daylight saving in the Spring?

Late with meals, late to bed, late to get up. We'd better not be today. This is a humdinger.

Overnight, it seems, everything is green. Even the light under the trees seemed green in the rainy afternoon. But not so green as I was on Saturday morning when the phone rang no less than four times before 9 a.m. to ask what happened to the perfectly good stories that weren't in the paper.

The miracle is that there weren't 20 calls because there are at least that many stories waiting for space. Why some girls are still wearing their engagement rings around their necks waiting for the news to break so they can wear them in the open.

All Schools Represented At Aux. Tea

Every high school in the county was represented yesterday afternoon at the tea at the General Hospital given by the Women's Auxiliary to the Monroe County Medical Society for girls interested in nursing as a career.

That interest was stimulated and many of their questions answered through the program arranged by Mrs. Horace Butler, auxiliary chairman of Nurse Recruitment.

The 65 girls who reported at the hospital at 1:30 were first taken on a tour of the hospital and its facilities before they assembled in the dining room. Miss Patricia Dodson, first president of the first Future Nurses Club in the county, reviewed the program of the year for the club in Stroudsburg high school, stressing program, projects, field trips and social activities.

The panel, shown above, answered questions on nursing qualifications in general and on Future Nurses Club activities in particular with Mrs. Butler serving as moderator. Information on nursing was distributed to the girls, along with applications for the nursing scholarship offered by the Soroptimist Club of Stroudsburg.

After the program, tea was served, arranged by a committee of Medical Auxiliary members who baked homemade cookies. Color was added to the party by the name cards in the form of tulips worn by each of the girls, and excitement by the distribution of favors and special prizes presented by a local drug store.

There were 19 girls from East Stroudsburg High School; 14 from Chestnut Hill Township High; 12 from Stroudsburg High School; six from Coalsburg Township; five each from Tobyhanna Township and Polk Township High Schools; four from Barrett High School; and one from Pocono Township High School.

Other guests included Mrs. Walter Brenholz, president of the third district council, Medical Auxiliary; Mrs. Jacob Kintz, Mrs. Charlotte Shupp, East Stroudsburg; Mrs. Glenmore Hayes, Blakeslee; Mrs. Mae Christman, Kunkletown.

Georgia Girl Is Bride Of C. J. Driebe

Gowned in candlelight satin, Miss Norma Jac Mobley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ward Mobley, of Fort Gaines, Georgia, descended the aisle of The Church of the Holy Redeemer, Eufaula, Alabama, Sunday afternoon, April 17, at 4:30 o'clock, to become the bride of Charles James Driebe, of Stroudsburg, son of James K. Driebe, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida and the late Mrs. Ann Doris Driebe. The Rev. Nicholas Grogan performed the double-ring ceremony.

Woodwardia fern, palms, and trees of emerald formed a background on the altar for giant white chrysanthemums, gladioli, snapdragons, and stock arranged in white ceramic wedding urns, alternating with white tapers in pyramid candelabra. Clusters of white pompon chrysanthemums and gladioli tied with large white satin bows marked alternate pews down the center aisle.

Larry Brown, organist, presented a musical prelude, and Miss Jean Sawyer, of Atlanta, soloist, sang "Panis Angelicus" (Franck) and "Ave Maria" (Schubert). During the ceremony the organist played "Traumeri" (Schumann).

Ushers were Edward Driebe and Albert Driebe, Stroudsburg, Edward Meals, Memphis, Tennessee; John McCarthy, Boston, Mass.; Terrell E. Stutts, and John W. Spears, Jr., of Atlanta. Dr. Joseph Driebe, Scranton, Pa., uncle of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Mobley Holman, matron of honor, and Miss Carol Mobley, maid of honor, sisters of the bride, were gowned alike in shell pink. The round necklines of the cotton lace fitted waists and the armholes were outlined with cotton beads. Full taffeta skirts were worn with matching cummerbunds. Completing the outfit were pink shoes and straw bandeaus edged in maline with clusters of Demure roses at the left side. They wore cut-crystal necklaces in shell pink, gifts of the bride. Their arm bouquets were Briarcliff roses tied with matching satin.

Bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Driebe, cousin of the groom, Stroudsburg; Miss Camille Harden, Nancy Jarrell, and Catherine Dismuke, of Atlanta; and Miss Marianne Morris, Fort Gaines. Their gowns of hyacinth, fashioned like those of the honor attendants, were worn with matching shoes and light sapphire crystal necklaces. The bandeaus and arm bouquets were identical to those worn with the pink outfits.

The bride, entering with her father, wore a wedding gown which featured rounded neckline with pointed yoke of handrun Alencon lace. The molded basque was corded to a full skirt which swept into a chapel train. The fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a fitted open-crown circlette fashioned of four Chantilly lace medallions edged with

Mrs. Arnold, Roy Haydt Are Married

Mrs. Gertrude May Arnold, Stroudsburg, and Roy Howard Haydt, Palmerton, were married on Saturday morning at the Trachsville Evangelical and Reformed and Lutheran Church by Rev. Luther Wahrman.

Their attendants were Miss Ruth Ann Haydt, daughter of the bridegroom, and Arthur Arnold, son of the bride.

The bride wore a dress of blue linen in princess style with a pink hat and shoes and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Haydt wore an aqua dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a wedding luncheon for members of the bridal party was held at Chestnut Hill Inn.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Heeter, and the late Edwin Mader, of Stroudsburg. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haydt, of Kunkletown. The bride is employed by Rauchenberger Silk Co., Chipperfield Drive, and Mr. Haydt is a crane operator at the Palmerton Zinc Co.

They will make their home at Palmerton, RD 2.

flowers centered by pearls and with petals outlined by iridescent bugle beads. She wore a single strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of Snow White roses and stephanotis, outlined by loops of pearls and showered with pearl loops.

The mother of the bride wore aqua lace over taffeta and matching shoes. Her small hat was fashioned of aqua lace and she wore a purple orchid.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home in Fort Gaines. The entrance was decorated with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums, stock, and snapdragons. Miss Marjorie Whidlon greeted the guests at the door and members of the wedding party received in the living room beside an arrangement of star flowers and purple orchids in a silver compote. The mantel was decorated with silver wine coolers holding arrangements of calla lilies and gladioli.

Mrs. Edward Holmes, pianist, played during the reception. In the dining room several cupid perched amid the blossoms added a note of interest to the arrangement of Briarcliff roses, painted daisies, and snapdragons on the buffet. The bride's table, covered with a white satin cloth, was festooned with dwarf smilax caught at the corners by clusters of pink gardenias. The four-tiered wedding cake in the center of the table was embossed with pink roses, lilies-of-the-valley, and light purple violets. On each side three-branched silver candelabra held tapers with the same decorations as the cake. Mrs. R. H. Morris served the cake. Mrs. L. M. Ray and Mrs. L. L. Gwynn were hostesses in the gift rooms. Miss Marion Killingsworth kept the bride's book and Mrs. Alton Tribble, Jr. was in charge of the cake boxes.

The punch table, placed in the den, featured garlands of carnations, chrysanthemums, and painted daisies, edged with huckleberry. Silver punch bowls, placed at each end of the table, had backgrounds of crystal prisms candelabra.

After the reception Mr. Driebe and his bride left for a wedding trip to Miami. Mrs. Driebe wore a sheer white wool sheath lined with white taffeta, and matching jacket. Black patent shoes and other accessories in pink completed the outfit. Her corsage was a purple-throated white orchid.

The couple will reside in Atlanta where the bridegroom is stationed at Fort McPherson.

Among the out-of-town guests were: James K. Driebe, Fort Lauderdale, Florida; Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Driebe, and daughters Marianne and Rosemary; Miss Suzanne Driebe, Albert Driebe, and Mrs. Mary Smith, Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania; Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Driebe, Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Carrier Air Conditioning Helped Produce Salk's Vaccine

Conditioned Air Required To Provide Absolute Prevention Of Contamination Of Drug

THE CRITICAL role air conditioning has played in the desperate rush to mass-produce Dr. Salk's history-making anti-polio vaccine was revealed today by the air conditioning industry's leading manufacturer, Carrier Corporation, which supplied special equipment for Dr. Salk's Tissue Culture Laboratory and for Eli Lilly and Parke-Davis, said, that precision control of temperature, humidity and purity of air proved an essential key in the monumental task of bringing the new wonder substance to market at such an early date.

Carrier Air Condition units are handled in this region by Lawton Huffman Company of Marshalls Creek.

The basic air conditioning problems were absolute prevention of contamination which would have upset tests or production and maintenance of body temperatures in solutions where tissues and virus are artificially grown.

Early in 1953 when Dr. Salk's research began looking toward production of the vaccine on a massive scale, it became necessary to employ thousands of test tubes and slides in growing and preparing tissues and virus and analyzing the results.

"In Dr. Salk's Pittsburgh laboratory, it was a case of unstoppering test-tube necks instead of bottle-necks," according to William Bynum, Carrier executive vice president.

"Keeping the test tubes alone sealed tightly against contaminating bacteria, yeast and mold found in ordinary air would have slowed down their work considerably," the Carrier executive said.

A special Carrier system was designed and installed which pressurized the room against infiltration of outside air, and subjected the conditioned air supply to five separate purifications by filtering. At the same time humidity was held at a low level to prevent contamination of slides, tubes and other equipment by perspiration.

Break-neck speed in supplying equipment to hurry up the job was a prime element in all of the air conditioning installations, Mr. Bynum said.

In Indianapolis, Eli Lilly and Company converted an entire five-story building to polio vaccine production in less than 90 days.

Here anti-contamination provisions even exceeded those found in a hospital operating room are employed in areas where tissues from monkey kidneys are prepared and placed in nutrient mediums.

In incubating rooms where tissue-cells are actually grown in enclosed vats and where the strains of polio virus are planted and reproduced on the living tissue cells, special air conditioning is used to maintain body temperature of 98.6 degrees. Cooling is necessary most of the time, because of the heat from dozens of motors which rock the vats constantly.

Once the virus strains are grown they are held in rooms where a battery of Carrier cold diffusers provides a chilly 40 degree temperature. They are then tested for potency, and strained through filters so fine that ordinary bacteria, yeast, molds and other viruses will not pass through them, before being inactivated for use as a vaccine.

New Paint For Masonry At Fethermans

A NEW paint made expressly for stucco and masonry walls and asbestos shingle-siding is being featured now at Fred Fetherman's Paint store at 1016 W. Main Street in Stroudsburg.

SPRED GLIDE-ON is a revolutionary new finish for exterior masonry surfaces — available in beautiful pastels and deeper shades, plus attractive let-downs that can be easily made by intermixing SPRED GLIDE-ON colors with Tinting White (3525).

SPRED GLIDE-ON gives you the same properties you have enjoyed with SPRED SATIN inside your home. Goes on twice as fast as ordinary masonry finishes. Can be brushed, rolled or sprayed. Dries in minutes, completely dust free, to a beautiful, durable, suede-like finish. Keeps out moisture, yet the surface "breathes" to let vapor escape from inside, preventing blistering. Completely resistant to the alkalinity usually found in asbestos shingles and masonry.

The tough vinyl latex film of SPRED GLIDE-ON resists driving rains, hottest sunshine, mildew, snow and ice, sea air and saltwater spray, strongest smog, dust and chemical fumes. Colors will not fade — they stay bright, new-looking after ordinary finishes grow weak and dull. Resists cracking, peeling, blistering, acid and alkali action.

Stucco homes can be painted with SPRED GLIDE-ON easily and quickly with an exterior roller. Spray application is also recommended. All wood trim should be painted with a brush, using Glidden ENDURANCE HOUSE PAINT. You can use the garden hose to remove dirt, soot, mud stains and rainwater streaks from the surface of SPRED GLIDE-ON. The paint will become fresh-looking and save you the cost of repainting.

Roof Cement Handy

ROOF CEMENT is used for repairing leaks and cracks in roofs of all descriptions—concrete roofs, tin or metal roofs and composition roofs. It is also used for repairing chimneys, flues, gutters, spouting, eaves and cornices.

Bill Queenan's Expert Work On TV Based As Outstanding

HERE'S BILL QUEENAN, seated at his fully equipped service bench, doing what he knows best, servicing and repairing all makes and models of television sets and radios.

His knowledge and workmanship are guaranteed. Bill completed the 2-year course in advanced electronics at Temple University and received his diploma. But, Bill feels, the diploma in itself means little if the one who earns it doesn't keep abreast with the latest developments in the electronics field.

Bill Queenan does and he applies all this new knowledge everytime he works on a set. Bill would also like it known that radios today are more advanced and complicated than ever before and suggests periodic tube checks and minor adjustments to keep in fine working condition.

Along with the best possible service and repair, Bill sells the best radio and television sets—RCA, VICTOR AND EMERSON—both are long known and respected names on the radio and television market.

See Bill Queenan for television and radio service or for a new set at 750 Main Street in Stroudsburg or call 1274-J.

Ford Makes One Of Five New Tractors

ACCORDING TO Raymond Price Sr. of Raymond Price, Inc., of Mountaintop, Penna., Ford Motor Company's Tractor and Implement Division produced one out of every five of the wheel type tractors produced in this country last year.

Production schedules have been upped recently to meet the increasing demand for the new Ford Tractor.

Mr. Price attributed this increase to the new broader line developed by their Farm Equipment Research and Engineering Center located in Birmingham, Michigan.

By careful study and analysis, the Center has developed 5 new tractor models to "round out" their line. Not only is this line of inter-related to every farmer in the area but also to grading and excavation contractors. Ford is daily working on better and a more diversified line of implements for all uses.

"We welcome your inquiries and would be happy to show you a combination of tractor and accessories."

Water, Wax Mixed

A WATER-EMULSION wax is a liquid wax in which water instead of oil is used as the vehicle. Some ingredient has been added to the water so that the water and wax will mix.

Lacquer For Metal

FIREPLACE FIXTURES of hammered brass can be successfully finished with clear lacquer. This material is also suitable for coating such decorative objects as candlesticks and ornamental bowls.

Treible Has TV Jingle Contest

HOWARD E. Treible announced last week on this page that TV SERVICE MONTH will be observed from April 19 to May 19 with an invitation to the public to participate in a jingle contest with $17 cash prizes being awarded.

However, in the headline I erroneously gave Howard the name of Harold, I stand corrected, it should have read, "Howard E. Treible Announces TV Service Month."

60 Travel Counselors Open Meeting

APPROXIMATELY 60 travel counselors representing the 57 AAA motor clubs in the State will be on hand to attend the three-day Spring Travel Counselors' Institute when classroom instruction gets underway at 9:45 a.m. today at Pocono Manor Inn.

Registering for the school conducted semi-annually by the AAA Pennsylvania Motor Federation to keep AAA motor club personnel up-to-date on every phase of the travel field, counselors attended a showing of travel films last night in Manor Hall.

The PMF-AAA clubs, which represents nearly 515,000 motorists through the Commonwealth, are headed by John S. Giles, of Reading, president, and R. B. Maxwell, Harrisburg, secretary-manager of the Federation.

Instruction will get underway this morning with a discussion on the subject "Adventure by Car to New England and the Maritime Province," to be given by Mrs. Maxine Ross, of the Connecticut Motor Club.

C. E. Pugh, of Harrisburg, assistant manager of the PMF, will also speak this morning. His subject will be "All-Inclusive Travel and the Travel Counselor," covering the service for travelers offered by the American Automobile Association.

"Toll Roads—Expressways?" will provide the theme for a discussion to be handled at this afternoon's session by Clifford W. Bigelow, Wilkes-Barre, secretary-manager of the Wyoming Valley Motor Club. He will also speak on the topic, "Getting There is Half the Fun."

Final speaker on the afternoon program will be David Janieson, of Washington, D. C., representative of the AAA's National Touring Bureau, whose subject will be "Our Last Frontier," in which he will discuss the latest travel information on Alaska and the Canadian Northwest.

Activities for the day will come to a close this evening with a Square Dance.

Tomorrow will be observed as "National Touring Bureau Day," when information on travel throughout the United States, trans-continental routes to the West Coast and tourist objectives throughout the Nation will be covered by Tom Smith, Ralph Danford and Mr. Janieson, all representatives of the AAA agency from Washington, D. C.

There will also be a special course in basic and fundamental information for new travel counselors in attendance tomorrow which will be conducted by Mr. Pugh.

Harold R. Powell, of Harrisburg, council for the federation, will serve as toastmaster tomorrow night at a banquet for travel personnel and their guests. A special "Manor Party" and dance will follow.

The school will wind up with a resume on Wednesday morning, adjourning in time to provide plenty of travel time for travel counselors to reach most Pennsylvania cities during daylight.

Asent when the photo was taken were: Michael A. Kato, Jessup, maintenance division, and Edward P. Pasko, Gouldsboro, maintenance division.

Coast Guard Searching For Fisherman

BELMAR, N. J., April 24 (AP) — Two Coast Guard cutters today searched without success for a missing fisherman, tossed into the water Saturday when a passenger liner loomed up out of the fog to shear the bow of a crowded fishing boat.

Henry Jacobs, 53, a foundry worker from East Greenville, Pa., was on the bow when the two ships collided. He was presumed dead.

Crewman from the liner, the 7,652-ton President Buchanan, took the remaining 56 passengers, six of them injured, from the crippled fishing vessel after the big ship turned around.

Many of the passengers were from the Philadelphia area.

Mount Pocono Woman Injured

NANCY DEMER, 33, of Mount Pocono was hurt Friday night when her car went out of control and struck a utility pole near Martins Creek.

Miss Demer is being treated for a sprained neck and body bruises at Easton Hospital. State police of the Bethlehem sub-station investigated the accident.

Chiang Checks U. S. Officials On Far East

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 24 (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek discussed the "broad overall situation" in the Formosa area with two high visiting U. S. officials today, a Chinese source reported.

A Nationalist Foreign Office informant expressed doubt the offer of Premier Chou En-lai of Red China to negotiate with the United States on the Formosa crisis would even come up.

Chiang conferred in the afternoon with Walter Robertson, assistant U. S. secretary of state, and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

A communique said only that they exchanged views on the U. S.-Nationalist treaty under which the United States guarantees to defend Formosa and the adjacent Pescadores from any Red attack.

The meeting was described as amicable.

This contrasted with gloomy speculation among Nationalists that at the least Chiang would be asked to abandon the offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matus.

Some U. S. quarters expressed belief developments might not be that severe for the Nationalists, who have vowed to defend both Quemoy, across the strait, and the Matus, 120 miles northwest of Formosa.

The Chinese source said Chiang, Radford and Robertson talked about subjects "much broader" than the offshore islands.

This largely coincided with Robertson's own remarks to newsmen when he arrived yesterday. He said he would not comment on a report "I came here to talk over any evacuation," and declared: "I just came to consider the problems of our treaty."

Pope Calls On Scientists To Teach Mankind

VATICAN CITY, April 24 (AP)—Pope Pius XII urged the world's scientists today to become teachers of mankind in the splendors of nature in order to lead men to adoration of God.

"We to them who make use of falsely taught science to make men leave the right path," the Pope said in a speech. "They are likened to stones placed out of malice on the roads of the human race. They are the obstacles on which men stumble in their search of truth."

The Pope spoke at a plenary assembly of the Pontifical Academy of Science. The academy opens a week of study tomorrow. Eight cardinals and 30 members of the academy attended today's session.

as Inspector of Training for the session.

'Let's Have A Better World' By Dr. Daniel W. LaRue Is Promotion Of World Democracy

LET'S HAVE A BETTER WORLD by Daniel Wolford LaRue, Ph. D., Exposition Press, New York, 240 pages, $4.

By Leonard Randolph
THE "HOW-TO" book is a phenomenon of American publishing and our national culture. During the past two decades more books have appeared on U. S. publishers' lists telling Americans the value of "positive thinking" and pointing the way toward "peace of mind" than any other specific type. They are nearly always best sellers. Much of the time they are little more than schoolgirl soporifics.

Dr. Daniel LaRue has written a book which makes no pretense of offering the individual reader "peace." Calling it simply "Let's Have A Better World," he has concerned himself with the overall problems of the world in which we live. Personal peace can be valid only as it relates to the peace of nations and the cohesive elements of government which can, the author indicates, lead to a finer and more enduring world.

Dr. LaRue sees the American form of "economic democracy" as the basic approach to world law and order. His views of economic need and the effects of demand on the well-being of governmental philosophy are finely pointed.

Recently we have been subjected to a running argument centered on social and economic gains. Many times the debaters tend to isolate the two elements, treating them as diametric opposites. It is Dr. LaRue's contention that any social "gain" which occurs without a correlating foundation in economic gain is "useless and... unattainable."

On the surface this may seem a simple observation. But years of argument have clouded the issues of society and economy. Often we have neglected the truth which lies at the heart of our philosophy of government; that the nation is as strong as its economy is sound.

Dr. LaRue advocates promotion of "world democracy." To accomplish this goal, he considers the varied "problems" involved and ends by suggesting that we "dis-solve" them. Among other things, he says, we should stop evaluating the world as "nations" and begin talking of it in terms of the "individuals" concerned.

A "United Democracy of the World" can be a reality, the author suggests. He presents a thorough and thoughtful analysis of the concept and of the objections to it.

If there is a flaw in Dr. LaRue's book, it is not to be found in the presentation of his own arguments. These are produced clearly and simply.

Whether the reader agrees with them will be a matter of personal makeup and psychological conditioning.

The book is stimulating and forceful; it has power and is frequently challenging in its philosophy.

BASEBALL and bowling were the big topics of discussion in East Stroudsburg Friday night and Saturday morning, and since this bit of ranting and raving was thrown together in the few hours of Saturday a. m., we'll open with a discussion on baseball and take up the Crowe's Insurance-Capuro's Service Delaware Valley League bowling match tomorrow. East Stroudsburg had a corner on the top local sporting events last week-end and interest ran high.

Bill Sommers gave another masterful pitching performance as he led East Stroudsburg High to a 2-0 victory over Parkland as the Cavaliers opened the Lehigh-Northampton League baseball wars with a favorable decision. Sommers allowed only three hits and two walks while retiring 14 batters on strikes. Bill had to be good as the visiting Cavaliers could account for only two singles off Dick Hausman through the first eight frames.

Hausman's fast balling antics had the Cavaliers swinging for 13 strikeouts during that period and apparently the game was destined to go on into infinity before Dick Gray singled to light the fuse in the ninth. But it was up to Bob "Red" Kupiszewski, a three-letter athlete who had a tough afternoon against Hausman up until the ninth, to win the ball game. Kupiszewski knocked an outside pitch into right field for a double to plate two runs and win the battle that took only one hour and 45 minutes to play.

The entire East Stroudsburg squad played heads-up baseball and didn't commit a single error in the field. The triple play which broke Parkland's back in the fourth came about through alert play by Sommers, Gene Plaza and Bill Pensyl. Sommers' catch on the bunted ball was reportedly a real finding gem. Parkland had loaded the bases with no outs at this point and the score was knotted at 0-0 at that time.

Sommers is scheduled to face Stroudsburg tomorrow when the arch rivals clash at Gordon Giffels Field at 4 p. m. Roger Ray of Frank "Buddy" Radler will probably get the call for the Mountaineers. Jerry Palaia, who celebrated his 34th birthday on Thursday, will be one of the umpires in tomorrow's baseball version of the "Battle of the Boroughs". Palaia worked last Friday's Lehigh-Northampton League diamond tussle in which Hellertown scored a 3-0 nod over Nazareth. The seven-inning encounter was completed in the amazing time of one hour and 10 minutes. Palaia is the very popular basketball coach at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

Larry Butz, outstanding right handed pitcher for Pocono High School, is one of the very few flingers to ever win three games in one week in the Monroe County League. Butz hurled Pocono to a 9-0 win over Pohk last Monday, came back to earn a 7-6 nod over Tobyhanna Township in relief on Tuesday and then hurled a 12-0 shutout at defending champion Chestnut Hill on Thursday. Pocono's next game is at Tannersville, against Coalinga, on Friday.

Some of the outstanding athletes at ESSTC are reportedly good chess players. The list includes Ray Kaseman, Walt Bjorn and Tom Spillane, of basketball fame, and Charley Dentith, ESSTC's state teachers college, wrestling champion in the 147-pound class. Don Toth, number one singles player on the Normal Hill tennis squad, never played the game before he entered the local college.

Ed Torres, number one singles player for the Rider College tennis squad that, strutted its stuff on Normal Hill last Friday, is the New Jersey State Amateur champion. Torres also reached the final round of an invitation tennis tournament sponsored by Rider last year before suffering defeat. The tournament featured some of the outstanding amateur tennis stars in the eastern section of the country. Friday's ESSTC-Rider tennis match, originally slated for 2:30 p. m., got underway at 1 p. m. at Rider's request. Rider had a special college celebration on Friday night at which New Jersey's Governor Robert B. Meyner was to speak and the tennis squad wanted to join in the festivities.

Square Bar won the championship in the Monroe Classic Bowling League last week after a special roll-off with Deer Head Inn. The circuit will hold its annual banquet at Red Top Tavern on Thursday. Those who were Tom Waring's guests at last Thursday's victory celebration are still talking about the fine affair put on by the local sportsman who is widely respected in every corner of the area.

Capuro Keglers Win Delaware Valley League Crown

Crowe Five Fails In Special Match

CAPURO'S Service won the Delaware Valley League bowling championship on Saturday afternoon as the Easton club finished a special six-game roll-off with Crowe's Insurance on the long end of the total wood count by 188 pins.

Saturday's match, held at Harmon's Recreation, East Stroudsburg, drew a crowd of approximately 100 people.

The first three games of the post-season match were rolled at the Fleas Club, Easton, on Friday night. At the end of the first half of the six-game tussle Capuro's held a 2772-2560 lead over the East Stroudsburg keggers.

Crowe's club, owning more championships than any other team in the Delaware Valley League history, picked up 90 pins on its rival in the first six frames on Saturday, but Capuro's keggers came back to regain most of this margin and win by 188 pins.

Saturday's host won, both the first and second games, but lost the third and gained only 24 of the 212 pins needed in order to even the score.

The final official tabulation favored Capuro's club 5557-5369.

John Javitt led Crowe's uphill fight on Saturday with games of 245, 199 and 203 for a total of 647 pins. Jake Nittel was the only other member of the home squad to better the 200 mark and he did it by a four-pin margin in the last game.

Doug Hawk's 641 was tops for Capuro's keggers on Saturday, as the leadoff man put together games of 193, 211 and 237. Joe Spinato hit a 223 tilt and Mike Kravetz rolled 214 in the final game.

The special post-season roll-off was made necessary when Crowe's and Capuro's tied for first place in the final standings of the league.

The Delaware Valley League also held its annual banquet on Saturday night, at the Phillipsburg Elks. A crowd of 100 people were in attendance.

Jack Darr, anchorman for Crowe's contingent, was honored as the high average kegler for the season at the banquet. Darr's final figure was 197.36, while teammate Nittel and Hawk, of Capuro's finished in a dead heat for second place with a 193.13 mark.

The Phillipsburg Elks won high prize honors for a team, 3137, and Norton Oil rolled the high single game, 1118. Chet Williams, of Pat's Kiddie Shop, had high individual match of 729, while Art Hellings, Norton Oil, rolled a high single game of 284.

Chet Butler, bowling authority in the Lehigh Valley, presented the championship trophy to Capuro's squad.

All team captains and sponsors were introduced at the gathering which featured a dance after a turkey and ham dinner.

Montgomery F. Crowe, president of Crowe's Insurance, was on hand as Crowe's bowling sponsor, as was Larry Schoenberger, of the same concern. Nittel, Javitt, Darr, Dick Andress, Tom Sommers and reserve Russ Bergman were present with guests as 22 people from the East Stroudsburg-Stroudsburg area attended the banquet.

Saturday's scores follow:

Crowe's Insurance
Andress 184 172 100-516
Sommers 184 181 171-536
Javitt 245 199 203-647
Nittel 176 188 204-568
Darr 197 170 164-531

Scranton Bowler Among Leaders

READING, April 24 (AP)—Edgemont Hotel and Bar of Philadelphia combined a scratch score of 2734 with a handicap of 172—good for a total of 2,926—tonight to move into first place in the class "B" team event in the Pennsylvania state bowling championships.

Peter Notari of Scranton, had games of 192, 197 and 245-634, to move into fourth place in the class "A" singles competition.

Saylorsburg To Hold Special Baseball Meeting

SAYLORSBURG—Saylorsburg's entry in the Pocono Mountains Baseball League will hold a special meeting here at the Lilly Pond today at 8 p. m.

New uniforms will be distributed and last minute bits of business will be settled prior to the opening of the pennant dash next Sunday, when Saylorsburg plays at Houdonville.

Saylorsburg held a 5-1 lead when yesterday's final exhibition game with Reiders was rained off the books, here on the Saylorsburg field. The Lakers scored four times in the first frame and had scored once in the bottom of the second before rain halted play. Reiders tallied its lone run in the opening stanza.

The Saylorsburg management announced yesterday that practice sessions would be held on Tuesday and Thursday for the balance of the season. Each drill will be held at 6:15 p. m.

ESSTC Host To Scranton In Track Opener

SON WILL battle father as East Stroudsburg State Teachers College lifts the lid on its 1955 track season against the University of Scranton on Normal Hill today at 3:15 p. m.

John McAndrew, high jumper for the Warriors, is the son of Coach John McAndrew of the University of Scranton track squad. The coaching McAndrew is also a member of the Dunmore High School faculty.

Joining McAndrew in the high jump event for ESSTC will be Nick Berish, back for another season of track at the local college. Don Franks and Dave Persons will attempt to make up for the loss of Russ Leidy in the pole vault department for Coach Howard DeNike.

Leidy, who cleared 12 feet in every meet and was undefeated last season, quit school.

Roland Alger, Ken Cox, Dick Ashner and Berish, all veterans of last season, will handle the shot put chores, while Ashner, Alger, Berish and freshman Ed Moravetz are also ready to handle the discus duties.

Don Griffith and Burt Hughes, a pair of transfer students last season, will team with Jack Fisher, a veteran campaigner, and Karl Schure, in an effort to fill the shoes of brilliant Bob Brown, outstanding distance star who departed from Normal Hill by the graduation route.

Fisher and Schure will also run in the two-mile grind. Tom Salvaris, much heralded newcomer to the ESSTC squad, may also run in both distance events if an injury has healed enough to make such a venture possible.

Gary Panovec, Wilson Borough High graduate, who did such a brilliant job for DeNike last year, will be back to run in the 440, his specialty, today. John Sayler, sophomore, and Dick Semmel, freshman who made his mark at Lehigh High, will round out the quarter-mile field.

Art Boger, veteran, and Howard Staeger and Lawrence Morgan, both freshmen, will carry the red and black colors in the 100-yard dash, while Panovec, Sayler and either Staeger or Boger take their places at the starting line in the 220-yard dash.

Gary Keller and Cal Wolfgang, both experienced track stars, will do the work in the 120-yard high hurdles and 220-yard low hurdles. Morgan will also join the field in the low-hurdle event.

Hughes, Griffith and Semmel are listed for the half-mile grind, while Dan Donovan and Jack Andrews, both experienced athletes, will lead the field into the broad jump, along with Berish, Morgan and Sid Morrison, a sophomore.

Bad weather and two key injuries have made it tough for Coach DeNike to whip his squad into shape for this opening event.

Bob Smith, counted on by DeNike to carry the load in the javelin, aggravated an old arm injury, which stems back to his tour of duty with the Army, and may be finished for the season. Bruce Morey, a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and a solid half-mile for the Warriors last year, may also be lost for the season as he only recently had his appendix removed.

ESSTC won five and lost only one meet last year. The single loss was at the hands of West Chester. The Warriors run against powerful West Chester on Wednesday, at West Chester.

Albright defeated Scranton in track last Saturday, 67-59, to run its unbeaten streak to four straight.

Pirates End Losing Habit Against Phils

PHILADELPHIA, April 24 (AP)—Max Surkont's pitching and Dale Long's hitting finally paid off for the winless Pittsburgh Pirates today as they defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader.

A heavy rainstorm, cold, penetrating winds and even some snow flurries delayed the second game so long it had to be called because of the Pennsylvania curfew in the bottom of the eighth with Philadelphia ahead 2-0.

It will be completed when the Pirates return here June 28.

Pittsburgh pummeled four Phillies pitchers in the first game, hanging out 12 hits. Four of them were by first baseman Dale Long, who had five trips to the plate. Surkont won the honor of winning the first game of the year for Pittsburgh—they've had eight straight losses—and would have had a shutout save for Del Ennis' sixth inning home run.

Roberto Clemente, Dick Groat and Gene Freese each had two hits for the Bucs with Freese scoring three of the runs. Pittsburgh scored two in the second inning to drive rookie Jim Owens out of action and added three more to end the relief job of Steve Riddick. The final Pirate run came in the eighth off Dave Cole.

Jackie Meyer and Nelson King faced each other in the uncomfortable nightcap, dueling right down to the deadline. Nelson had given up four hits and Meyer three.

In the seventh Meyer helped his cause with a triple, scoring Stan Paly. In the same inning, Ennis, who had singled, reached home on a series of errors and a sacrifice by Willie Jones.

Bangor Little League Enrolls 106 Players

BANGOR — Bangor's Little League registered 106 boys between the ages of nine and 12 for the coming season here at Pennico Field on Saturday. The boys will be divided between six teams, one more than operated in the circuit last season.

Teams entered this year are sponsored by the First Ward Community Association, Second Ward Community Association, Fourth Ward Citizens Club, Bangor Elks, Bangor Athletic Association and a joint Kiwanis-Exchange Club entry.

Bangor Little League will use the point system for the first time as far as selection of players for the various teams is concerned. Selections will be made following 10 days of tryouts for the various players and will be made by the managers and coaches.

The 12-year-olds will practice on Thursday of this week, at 6 p. m., while the 11-year-olds drill on Friday at the same time. The 10-year-olds practice on Saturday at 9 a. m., while the nine-year-olds boys workout next Monday, at 6 p. m.

Three fields will be available for league games this season, it was revealed on Saturday. The new field at Bangor Memorial Park is ready and will be used this season in addition to Pennico Field and the old Bangor Park field, near Flory's Dam. The season is scheduled to open late next month.

Sherwood Holland and Blaine Holland will manage and coach the First Ward team respectively, while Clyde Grigg and Bill Scott are manager and coach respectively of the Second Ward club. Bangor A. A. will be managed by Idris Williams and coached by Elwood Parsons. Granville Evans, well known Bangor High football coach, will pilot the Elks, while Melbourne Lohb serves as coach for the same club.

Charley Eden is coach for the Kiwanis-Exchange entry, but no manager has been selected to date. The Fourth Ward is expected to name both its manager and coach within a matter of days.

Amateurs Launch Qualifying Round

PINEHURST, N.C., April 24 (AP)—Golfers of national and sectional reputation, about 140 in all, tee off here tomorrow in the qualifying round of the 55th North and South Amateur Tournament.

The low 64 scorers in the 18-hole qualifying play move into match play Tuesday over the par 72 No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club, 7,000 yards of trouble.

Miksik Leads Cubs To Nod Over Redlegs

CHICAGO, April 24 (AP)—Handy man Eddie Miksik, filling in at third base for injured Randy Jackson, batted in both runs as the Chicago Cubs edged Cincinnati 3-1 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader today.

The Cubs held a 3-0 lead when the second game was halted by rain in the Chicago half of the third inning. After a 35 minute wait the game was called off.

Actual attendance was 12,523. Miksik hammered his first 1955 home run leading off the fifth inning for the winning marker in Chicago's fifth straight trimming of the Redlegs.

Miksik also supplied the power for Chicago's first run in the second with nothing more potent than an infield grounder. Hank Sauer walked as a starter and moved to third on Ernie Banks' single.

Sauer scored when Miksik forced Banks after Dee Fondy struck out. Washed down the drain when the second game was declared out by Fondy, leading off the round, and catcher Harry Chitt, whose drive into Waveland Ave., behind the left field fence, followed Miksik's double.

Rawls Wins Over Berg

CARROLLTON, Ga., April 24 (AP)—Betsy Rawls nursed her lead safely through a windy final round today and fired a 77 to win the $5,000 Carrollton Women's Open golf tournament by three strokes with a 218 total.

Patty Berg made a determined bid to overhaul the Spartansburg, S. C., girl, who had led all the way, but was able to trim only one stroke off Betsy's margin. Patty shot a 76 for a 221.

For the tough little nine-hole Sunset Hills course, raked by stiff winds the final two days, is 36 for men and 38 for women.

Women Crown Bowling Champs

ALTOONA, April 24 (AP)—Champions were crowned tonight in the 19th annual tenpin tournament of the Pennsylvania Women's Bowling Association with the last weekend of competition producing only one change among the leaders.

The Fielding and Pomeroy team of Philadelphia rolled into first place in the class "A" division last night with 2,492.

Nixon Hurls Sixth Straight Verdict Over Yanks For Bosox

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Willard Nixon, a well-established Yankee killer, beat New York for the sixth straight time today with a twohit shutout as Norm Zauchin's ninth-inning single gave Boston a 1-0 edge.

Eddie Lopat, fast becoming a Sunday pitcher, battled Nixon on even terms for eight innings. With one out in the ninth, Faye Thronberry singled through shortstop, Billy Hunter barely missing a backhand stab. Thronberry advanced to second on Jackie Jensen's grounder.

Lehman Offers Amendments To Refugee Act

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP) — Sen. Lehman (D-NY) proposed a batch of amendments today to the 1953 Refugee Relief Act. One would eliminate State Department Security Chief W. R. Scott McLeod as administrator of the act.

A sharp controversy over administration of the program for admitting up to 214,000 refugees and other nonquota immigrants broke out after Secretary of State Dulles dismissed Edward Corsi as a special assistant on refugee problems.

Corsi, a prominent New York Republican who was dropped as of Easter Sunday after serving 90 days, charged at a Senate hearing that the program has been "a complete failure and national scandal."

McLeod denied this, and expressed resentment at Corsi's charge that he had "sabotaged" the program.

Lehman called Corsi's dismissal "most unfortunate", but he said he felt both the law and the way in which it has been administered were to blame for what he called "the paralysis of the refugee program."

He said the law was hobbled with technical amendments that "robbed the act of its truly humanitarian aspects and made it instead a prescription for delay, frustration and heartbreak."

But Lehman also described the administration of the act as "most inadequate", adding that changes in attitude by Dulles, consular officers abroad and others are necessary "if this program is to be snatched from the jaws of failure."

The 1953 act makes the director of the State Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs—the post held by McLeod—administrator of the program.

Lehman said one of his amendments would eliminate this provision and place direction of the program in the hands of a full-time administrator within the State Department "who would not be subject to the bureaucratic control of any division chief."

This was but one of many amendments Lehman said he will introduce tomorrow for himself, Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) and others. He released in advance a prepared speech describing his proposals.

Among other changes, his amendments would increase the number of aliens admissible under the program by 15,000, make the final cut-off date Dec. 31, 1960, instead of Dec. 31, 1956, liberalize the definition of refugees, and permit job and housing guarantees for immigrants to be given by church and other voluntary agencies as well as by individual Americans.

First, Second Graders Will Be Treated

Thursday, April 28: 9 a. m.—Chestnuthill Township School at Brodheadsville with Dr. John Martucci in charge. When shots for Chestnuthill first and second graders are complete, Dr. Martucci will go to the Hamilton Township Consolidated School near Sciota for inoculations there. From Hamilton Dr. Martucci goes to Eldred Township Grade School near Kunkletown at about 1 p. m. When shots at Eldred are finished, he will go to Polk Township School at Kresgeville.

Thursday (continued): 9 a. m.—Mount Pocono School, Dr. David Kohn in charge.
Friday, April 29: 9 a. m.—Smithfield Township School near Shawnee, Dr. M. J. Leitner in charge.

The current inoculations are intended solely for first and second graders. No other children are to receive the vaccine under the no-charge arrangements of the National Foundation.

First and second graders were chosen to receive the free vaccine shots by the Foundation because records during the past years have shown that this age group is most susceptible to polio.

In order that the free vaccine shots may be given to first and second graders a signal form must be on record or presented with the signature of the child's parents.

Distribution of the vaccine will be carried out by volunteers who will transport it from the office of Dr. Jones, Monroe County Health Officer.

Honor Students At Exchange

THE TOP honor students from Monroe County high school senior classes will be guests tonight at an Exchange Club dinner.

The meeting is slated for the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church at 6:30 tonight. Valedictorians and salutatorians from all the high schools have been invited to attend.

Two Killers Await Time Of Execution

BELLEFONTE, Pa., April 24 (AP)—Two convicted killers counted off the hours tonight, awaiting their execution in the electric chair at the Rockview State Prison—the first executions of Gov. George M. Leader's administration.

They are Grover Cleveland Edwards, 36, and Benjamin Robinson, also 36, of Delaware County. Both slayings occurred during attempts at robbery.

Edwards was convicted of the 1952 pistol slaying during a robbery attempt of Isaac S. Teitlebaum, 64, a retired Philadelphia baker, in Teitlebaum's apartment.

The Philadelphia district attorney's office described Teitlebaum's slaying as a "cold, brutal, premeditated crime."

Robinson was sentenced to death in the bludgeoning slaying a year ago of Mrs. Rose Iacono, a Chester storekeeper. His attorneys pleaded before the Pardon Board for clemency on the grounds the woman was not killed intentionally.

John J. Statser, Robinson's attorney, told the board that Robinson entered the store to rob it but did not carry a weapon.

Statser said Mrs. Iacono was beaten to death because Robinson "became panicky and did not know what he was doing."

However, Asst. Dist. Atty. J. Harold Hughes described the slaying as "an unquestionably, extremely brutal crime."

(EDS: Executions are set for 12:30 a.m. EST.)
